Paul Dickson is managing director and portfolio manager of Armored Wolf, LLC, a commodities investment subadviser of Eaton Vance Corp.

Paul provides expertise in the areas of emerging market fixed-income and foreign exchange investment strategy. He first came to Wall Street in the early 1990s as a consultant to Chase Manhattan Bank and helped form the bank's first emerging markets research group. At that time, he was conducting a lecture series at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies on Finance in Emerging Markets. Previously, Paul was head of JP Morgan Asset Management's Emerging Markets Debt group where he managed $6 billion in fixed-income and foreign currency funds, and was a member of the macro team that oversaw all of the firm's fixed-income portfolios. He was also senior sovereign strategist for emerging markets at Lehman Brothers, where he won numerous awards for his research.

Paul earned a B.A. in Soviet studies from George Washington University School of International Relations and a master's degree from Johns Hopkins University SAIS in international studies and economics: dual master's program in Latin American studies and international economics. He also managed the school's Center of Brazilian Studies.
